MESSAGE FROM THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

DOUGLAS KANJA KIROCHO, MGH, CBS, OGW INSPECTOR GENERAL NATIONAL POLICE SERVICE

It is with great pride that I deliver this issue of the National Police Service Newsletter. Our Service continues to make significant progress in improving accountability, professionalism, and service delivery across the country.

This issue captures the progress the Service has made so far towards its goal of transforming policing in Kenya. This includes the launch of Jukwaa La Usalama, spearheaded by the Cabinet Secretary for Interior, Hon. Onesimus Kipchumba Murkomen, which has improved communication between citizens and security agencies; the successful recruitment of new officers for our Internal Affairs Unit; and the historic surrender of firearms in the Kerio Valley.

I would particularly like to thank the officers who secured the CHAN 2024 Tournament, those who brought acclaim to Kenya at the Imperial Shooting Meeting in the UK, and the teams who showcased their creativity at the Mombasa International Show. These milestones remind us that the Service is not only responsible for public safety, but also for promoting professionalism and competence.

At the same time, our reform journey is being strengthened by decisive steps such as the EACC's Systems Review, the Strategic Leadership Dialogue in Ngong, and our continuous work to improve officer welfare, digitisation, and training. These actions demonstrate our commitment to building a Service that is people-focused, accountable, and transparent.

As Inspector General, I extend my gratitude to the men and women of the National Police Service for their resilience, patriotism, and hard work. I also wish to reassure the people of Kenya of our unwavering commitment to "Service with Dignity."

We are pleased to present the latest edition of the National Police Service Newsletter, which showcases the accomplishments, reforms, and significant milestones that are defining the evolution of our Service.

This edition presents a collection of varied narratives highlighting bravery and change featuring officers spearheading peace initiatives in Kerio Valley through voluntary firearm surrenders, alongside specialised units like the K-9 Section, whose discreet contributions highlight the extensive scope of policing in our nation. We acknowledge our officers for their exceptional achievements in international competitions, their expertise in securing continental tournaments, and the Service's commitment to innovation and inclusivity at the Mombasa International Show.

In addition to these achievements, we consider the reforms and collaborations that are shaping the future of law enforcement. Engagements with communities, evaluations by oversight bodies, and partnerships with organisations such as NDU-Kenya, UNDP, IJM, and the EACC demonstrate a Service that is attentive, adaptive, and progressive.

At the Corporate Communications Directorate, we take pride in documenting and sharing these milestones with you the citizens we serve. We encourage you to read, reflect, and collaborate with us as we strive for a safer and more secure Kenya.

Since its inception, Jukwaa La Usalama has conducted forums across various counties, including Kajiado, Kilifi, Uasin Gishu, Nyamira, Nyandarua, Homa Bay, Bungoma, Kericho, and Nyeri. Every county edition has highlighted distinct challenges and opportunities. In Kilifi, the Cabinet Secretary and Inspector General conducted an inspection of mobile registration for national identification. Meanwhile, in Kajiado, escalating incidents of sexual violence led the Cabinet Secretary to issue a directive for prompt police intervention. The discussions in Homa Bay focused on issues of insecurity and service delivery, whereas in Bungoma and Kericho, residents expressed concerns regarding the condition of policing infrastructure and the welfare of officers. The current count of these forums has exceeded thirty, establishing them as essential listening posts for government and law enforcement leadership.

Several important themes have arisen from the engagements. Initially, the transparency and responsibility of government services continue to be a primary issue of concern. Citizens are utilising the forums to bring attention to delays in civil registration, the inadequate condition of police stations, and welfare concerns impacting long-serving officers. The leadership of the NPS has recognised these challenges, with the Inspector General and senior commanders pledging to enhance support for officers in the field. Additionally, issues related to community safety and crime, including sexual violence, youth engagement in criminal activities, and political instability, have been significant concerns. In every county, local leaders, administrators, elders, women, and youth are engaged in efforts to ensure that community perspectives inform the security agenda.

The program has encountered several challenges. Resource limitations, inadequate equipment, and elevated public expectations have created significant pressure on institutions to achieve prompt outcomes. Concerns regarding sustainability persist, as numerous communities advocate for ongoing follow-ups and tangible enhancements well beyond the conclusion of the forums. Nevertheless, the initiative has fostered momentum for enhanced collaborations among citizens, county governments, and the security sector.

In the future, the forums will further extend into additional counties, with an increasing focus on monitoring the fulfilment of commitments made. Citizens anticipate enhancements to police stations, advancements in officer promotions and welfare considerations, as well as the expansion of registration services. The involvement of local communities in tracking progress will continue to be crucial for maintaining the trust and goodwill that the forums are fostering.

The core of Jukwaa La Usalama consists of the dedicated individuals from the National Police Service. Their presence in the community guarantees that the voices of citizens are acknowledged and addressed. In addition to upholding the law, officers are cultivating relationships, enhancing trust, and collaboratively developing solutions with the communities they serve.

Jukwaa La Usalama has established itself as an essential link between citizens and the state. By connecting the leadership of the National Police Service more closely with the community, it has reinforced the essential role of police officers as representatives of the government at the local level. Law enforcement personnel are not solely focused on upholding regulations; they are also actively listening, engaging, and collaborating with communities to develop solutions. The forums have established a platform for addressing officers' concerns, such as equitable transfers, anticipated promotions, mental health support, and fostering a positive working relationship with administrators. Their participation in these forums highlights the Service's dedication to accountability and responsiveness. As the program progresses, the success of the initiative will rely on the police's ability to convert dialogue into tangible actions — enhancing infrastructure, prioritising officer welfare, and ensuring the safety and dignity that citizens anticipate. Jukwaa La Usalama represents a significant shift in the understanding and implementation of policing in Kenya.

INTERNAL AFFAIRS UNIT SUCCESSFULLY COMPLETES INDUCTION PROGRAMME

The National Police Service (NPS) has marked a significant achievement with the successful conclusion of the Basic Induction Training Programme for newly deployed officers of the Internal Affairs Unit (IAU) at the National Police Leadership Academy (NPLA). The program, executed in collaboration with the International Justice Mission (IJM), demonstrates the Service's unwavering dedication to enhancing accountability, expertise, and ethical standards.

The course was formally inaugurated by Mr. Mohamed I. Amin, the Director of the Directorate of Criminal Investigations (DCI), who stood in for the Inspector General of Police, Mr. Douglas Kanja. In his address, Mr. Amin commended the training as a pivotal advancement in developing a police service focused on the community. He urged the officers to maintain high standards of conduct, emphasising that their efforts within the IAU significantly influence public confidence and the credibility of law enforcement in Kenya. He conveyed his gratitude to IJM for their ongoing collaboration in promoting justice and accountability.

The vibrant closing ceremony was conducted by NPLA Commandant, Mr. David K. Mathiu, AIG, representing the Inspector General. In his commendation of the graduating officers, Mr. Mathiu urged them to adopt emerging technologies, such as Artificial Intelligence (AI), and to implement strategies aimed at addressing Technology-Facilitated Gender-Based Violence (TFGBV), thereby fortifying investigations and improving crime-fighting capabilities in today's landscape.

Throughout the programme, participants engaged in comprehensive training that encompassed police oversight, compliance with human rights standards, anti-corruption strategies, internal accountability mechanisms, and the application of modern investigative tools. These areas are essential in providing officers with the necessary skills to carry out unbiased, comprehensive, and prompt investigations—ensuring that the Service continues to exemplify excellence and institutional integrity.

Through the investment in specialised training, the National Police Service highlights the significance of the IAU as the protector of internal accountability. The program enhances the skills of officers while also supporting the broader reform agenda of the Service, which is grounded in transparency, justice, and public trust.

The International Justice Mission reiterated its dedication to collaborating with NPS to enhance justice systems, highlighting the essential relationship between accountability and justice.

The opening and closing ceremonies were attended by esteemed officials, including IAU Director Mr Boniface Maingi, SAIG; Deputy Commandant NPLA Dr. David Muthondeki, CP; NPLA Dean of Studies Ms. Sicily Gatiti, CP; NPLA Director of Planning, Research & Development Mr. Geoffrey Kathurima, CP; IAU Head of Human Capital Management Ms. Mildred Odima, CP; IJM Country Director Mr Vincent Chahale; and IJM Technical Lead for Police Partnerships Ms. Naomi Maina, along with other notable guests.

The successful completion of this induction course represents a crucial advancement in equipping the Internal Affairs Unit to maintain the utmost standards of accountability and integrity, ensuring that the National Police Service remains a reliable institution committed to justice and the rule of law.

NPS CONDUCTS A STRATEGIC LEADERSHIP DIALOGUE AT THE NATIONAL POLICE LEADERSHIP ACADEMY (NPLA), NGONG

The National Police Service (NPS) made a significant advancement in police reforms and leadership enhancement by organising a Strategic Leadership Dialogue on 20th August 2025 at the National Police Leadership Academy (NPLA) in Ngong. The discussion convened senior commanders, policymakers, and development partners to evaluate the current transformation journey and to outline new strategies for establishing a more accountable and community-focused police service.

The event was presided over by the Principal Secretary for Interior and National Administration, Dr. Raymond Omollo, alongside the Inspector General of Police, Mr. Douglas Kanja, and other senior leaders of the Service. In his address, Dr. Omollo commended the partnership between the NPS and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in organising the dialogue, emphasising that such forums are essential for enhancing reforms, accountability, and standards in policing. He assured the officers of the Ministry's steadfast support in this transformation, emphasising that reforms in legislation, digitisation, community policing, training, and ongoing performance evaluations are essential facilitators.

Inspector General Douglas Kanja highlighted that the Strategic Leadership Dialogue,

PS Interior, Dr. Raymond Omollo, inspects a guard of honour during the Strategic Leadership Dialogue at NPLA on August 20, 2025 themed “Supporting Accountable, Effective, and People-Centred Policing in Kenya,” is directly aligned with the NPS Strategic Plan (2023–2027). He observed that the discussions build on previous interactions with development partners and reaffirm the Service’s vision of evolving into a competent, efficient, and responsive institution. The Inspector General conveyed assurance that the ongoing reforms will soon elevate police stations and service areas to exemplary standards, establishing them as benchmarks for effective service delivery and fostering public trust.

The discussion also emphasised the importance of collaborations. On behalf of the Acting UNDP Resident Representative, Ms. Wambui Gathathi, Team Leader of the Program Management Support Unit, emphasised UNDP’s dedication to advancing police reforms in Kenya. She highlighted current initiatives including executive reform dialogues, collaboration with parliamentary committees, the deployment of Sub-County Youth Liaison Officers (SYLOs), and targeted training for Sub-County Police Commanders. She stated that these programs demonstrate a collective dedication to improving policing standards, advancing reforms, and fostering stronger relationships between officers and the communities they serve.

The forum saw strong participation from senior NPS leadership, including Ms Bernice Lemedeket, Secretary Administration and Accounting Officer; Mr. Eliud Lagat, Deputy Inspector General of the Kenya Police Service; Mr. Mohamed I. Amin, Director of Criminal Investigations; Mr. Davis Lomwatu, Commandant BPU; Mr. David Kainga Mathiu, Commandant NPLA; along with Directors from various headquarters, Formation Commanders, Regional Commanders, and officials from UNDP. Their combined presence underscored the significance of the discussion and the shared commitment propelling the Service ahead.

The Strategic Leadership Dialogue in Ngong served as a significant reaffirmation of the Service’s dedication to transforming policing in Kenya. It illustrated how effective leadership, supportive policies, and collaborative development are creating a future in which the NPS serves as a cornerstone of accountability, expertise, and public confidence. The Service is committed to investing in its personnel and systems, progressively guiding the transition towards a contemporary police service that aligns with the expectations of Kenyans and maintains its obligation to serve with integrity.

ONE YEAR LATER, REFLECTION ON THE KENYAN-LED MSS MISSION IN HAITI

“This commemoration not only marks a period, but it is a reflection of a year of dedicated effort, unwavering commitment, and tangible progress by MSS personnel, Haitian leadership, the Haitian National Police (HNP), Haitian People, partners of goodwill and the international community towards a peaceful Haiti.” These were the remarks by the MSS Force Commander, Mr. Godfrey Otunge S/AIG, on June 26, 2025, as the MSS fraternity commemorated its first anniversary since MSS troops landed in Haiti.

During this period, the Kenyan-led troops have remained guided by the Mission mandate to collaborate with the Haitian Police to combat gangs. Capacity building of the HNP ensures unhindered access for humanitarian aid by facilitating access to goods and services, protection of key critical infrastructure, and the optimal goal of creating a conducive environment necessary for holding free and fair elections. No doubt, MSS has not only stood out as a beacon of hope for Haiti but also as a testament to the power of international cooperation, having brought together troops from diverse background the Police Contributing Countries led by Kenya include; Belize, Bahamas, El Salvador, Guatemala, Jamaica who have heeded the call of duty and dedicating themselves to service to humanity and standing with the people of Haiti to restore law and order.

Through the tireless efforts of NPS troops and our collaboration with the Haitian National Police, there has been a significant reduction in violent gang attacks, sustained government operations, and maintenance of the rule of law by the Haitian National Authorities. The troops have thwarted plans by gang groupings to undermine the current government in place, MSS Deputy Force Commander Col. Eldon Morgan (center) is joined by Kenyan troops and Port Officials at the APN Port, Port au Prince on May 25, 2025 during a security assessment tour of the port. The APN Port once controlled by the gangs is now operational.

including efforts to cause instability during any transition to a Transitional Presidential Council. The National Police Service has indeed done a commendable role as it represents Kenya being the lead nation. The mission, which is a unique model unlike other peacekeeping operations, was crafted and best suited to deal with the gang menace in Haiti. The Mission is also the first security mission that is police-led.

It is worth noting that the Kenyan-led Mission has recorded tremendous successes, which have resulted in a gradual return to normalcy in various parts of Port-au-Prince, the Haitian Capital. The NPS troops with the Haitian counterparts continue to conduct synchronized day and night patrols across the Capital.

Additionally, Haiti's critical infrastructure, including its main airport, communication installations and the Port, has witnessed the return of operations. In supporting the HNP, the officers have secured various PNH facilities, such as The Inspector General of Haitian National Police (IGPNH) building and the Police Training Academy, which had been taken over by the gangs have been reclaimed.

The Forward Operating Bases (FOBs) that the MSS mission has established in IGPNH, Police Academy, Pont Sonde, Petite Revierre in Artibonite Department have significantly enhanced security. These FOBs have served as vital hubs for intelligence gathering, rapid response to threats, and protection of critical infrastructure.

Despite the gains and successes, the security mission has faced obstacles and regrettable loss of personnel. Their dedication, professionalism and unwavering commitment to a peaceful Haiti have been truly inspiring. We will always remember with profound sadness the heroism of our late officers who made the ultimate sacrifice in the pursuit of peace. Their courage and dedication will forever be etched in our hearts.

The challenges that the Mission has faced are being addressed to enable the Mission to achieve its objective in intended time. Efforts are being made by various partners of the mission to address challenges which include: funding, personnel, as well as other logistical issues.

Adherence to human rights is a legal and moral obligation, essential for maintaining international peace and security. The establishment of a Human Rights Monitoring mechanism through the MSS Complaint Reporting Mechanism initiative has amplified the uniqueness of the MSS Mission, thanks to the concerted efforts from MSS personnel, partners and civil rights organizations, no single case of sexual exploitation and abuse and human rights violations by MSS Personnel has been reported, this indeed reaffirming the commitment to fulfilling MSS mandate and according respect to the Haitian people.

We commend all the police officers serving under MSS for their continued professionalism, discipline, hard work and sacrifice that they have exhibited so far, as well as give gratitude to the Haitian Authorities, the HNP, the Haitian people, members of the press, together with all local and international partners for their invaluable support to the MSS.

“ This commemoration not only marks a period, but it is a reflection of a year of dedicated effort, unwavering commitment, and tangible progress by MSS personnel, Haitian leadership, the Haitian National Police (HNP), Haitian People, partners of goodwill and the international community towards a peaceful Haiti.

The Cabinet Secretary for Interior and National Administration, Honourable. Kipchumba Murkomen presided over the closing ceremony of the National Consultative Conference for Officers Commanding Stations (OCSs) at the National Police Leadership Academy (NPLA) in Ngong' on 4th September 2025.

The three-day conference assembled OCSs from various regions of the country under the theme "Transforming Police Stations into Centres of Excellence and Service Delivery." This event was organised to acknowledge the pivotal role OCSs hold within the National Police Service (NPS) framework. According to the NPS Act, Cap 84, the police station serves as the essential unit for providing security services to the public, with the OCS, as the leader of this unit, acting as the primary point of contact between the community and the Service. Their leadership, integrity, and resource management significantly influence public confidence in law enforcement.

During his keynote address, the Cabinet Secretary emphasised the significance of the forum, highlighting that it offered a unique opportunity for OCSs to exchange experiences, discuss operational challenges, and collaboratively shape the future of policing at the station level. He highlighted the government's dedication to transforming police stations into dynamic hubs of operational excellence, where accountability and service delivery are prioritised.

The reforms emphasised include the digitisation of police operations, featuring the implementation of the Digital Occurrence Book (DOB), an extensive Case Management System, and secure mobile applications aimed at enhancing efficiency and transparency in station operations. The purpose of these innovations is to enhance record-keeping, improve data-driven policing, and increase accessibility of services for citizens.

The CS emphasised that the well-being and mental health of officers are essential to the success of reforms. He assured the officers that the government is consistently evaluating salary structures, benefits, and working conditions to uphold dignity in service. He emphasised the importance of OCSs prioritising the well-being of junior officers under their command, acknowledging that motivated and supported officers are essential for effective service delivery.

The Cabinet Secretary urged OCSs to embrace proactive intelligence gathering, enhance community cooperation, and promote inter-agency collaboration in tackling emerging security threats. He emphasised that their leadership at the grassroots level establishes the standard for policing across the country and that their everyday actions have a direct impact on the trust and confidence that citizens place in the police.

Looking ahead, the conference was identified as a pivotal moment in enhancing leadership within police stations. The insights acquired and commitments established are anticipated to lead to enhanced policing practices, strengthened community partnerships, and a culture of excellence throughout the Service.

The event attracted the involvement of the Deputy Inspectors General from both the Kenya Police Service and the Administration Police Service, senior directors from NPS headquarters, and the Commandant of the NPLA, highlighting the significant emphasis placed on empowering OCSs as key leaders in policing across Kenya.

SHAPING THE FUTURE OF SECURITY STUDIES

NPLA Hosts Delegation From NDU-K

On September 19, 2025 the National Police Leadership Academy (NPLA) hosted a distinguished delegation from the National Defence University–Kenya (NDU-K), headed by the Vice-Chancellor, Lt. Gen. David K. C. Tarus, MGH, CBS, ‘ndc’ (K), ‘cgsc’ (USA), ‘psc’ (K). The team was welcomed at the Academy by the Commandant, Mr. David K. Mathiu, OGW, AIG.

The visit followed a previous engagement that took place on 8th September, during which the NPLA delegation was welcomed at the International Peace Support Training Centre (IPSTC), a constituent college of NDU-K. The meeting represented a crucial step forward in furthering the National Police Service’s vision of creating a comprehensive National Police Leadership University.

Throughout the discussions, both institutions emphasised the significance of collaboration in influencing the future of security studies. The discussions focused on formulating collaborative strategies to advance training, leadership development, and research in security and policing—essential components for bolstering national security and enhancing service delivery.

Lt. Gen. Tarus confirmed NPLA of NDU-K’s ongoing commitment to provide mentorship, academic guidance, and program development that meets both national and global security needs. He reiterated the university’s dedication to supporting the Academy in its pursuit of accreditation from the Commission for University Education (CUE) and other regulatory bodies, thereby ensuring its recognition as a centre of excellence in security studies. He further highlighted that this collaboration signifies a sustained commitment to enhancing leadership capabilities within national security agencies.

The Commandant of NPLA reiterated the Inspector General's vision of transforming police institutions and stations into centres of excellence. Since its commissioning on 21st December 2022, the Academy has achieved significant advancements by providing strategic leadership and specialised courses to officers within the Kenya Police Service (KPS), Administration Police Service (APS), and the Directorate of Criminal Investigations (DCI). These initiatives enhance the quality of service while providing officers with skills that directly benefit communities nationwide.

The visit concluded with a guided tour of NPLA's facilities, showcasing the Academy's dedication to providing exceptional training, education, and research in the fields of policing and security.

The NDU-K delegation comprised senior leadership and faculty members, including the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Finance and Administration), Maj. Gen. Thomas Ng'ang'a; DVC (Academic and Student Affairs), Prof. Anne Muigai; Director of Examinations, Brig. Elizabeth A. Omollo; along with other esteemed officers and scholars. Senior officials from NPS were present, including the Deputy Director of Legal, Mr. Charles Otiende, CP, along with senior staff from NPLA.

NPS TEAM ACHIEVES INTERNATIONAL RECOGNITION IN COMPETITIVE SHOOTING AT THE 156TH IMPERIAL MEETING, UK

The National Police Service (NPS) Shooting Team demonstrated exceptional skill and accuracy at the esteemed 156th Imperial Meeting, which took place at Bisley Camp, United Kingdom, from July 10th to 26th, 2025. The competition, organised by the National Rifle Association in the UK, assembled top marksmen from more than 15 countries, encompassing military, police, and civilian shooters.

The delegation representing Kenya included 23 shooters: 12 from the NPS, 8 from the Kenya Defence Forces (KDF), and 3 from the Kenya Sports Shooting Federation (KSSF). The team was under the leadership of Brigadier E.N. Gatere (Chef-de-Mission) and Mr. Daniel Kipkemboi, Senior Superintendent of Police (NPS Team Leader), with CI S. L. Otundo (NPS) fulfilling the role of a captain.

The tournament's highlight was the NPS team's successful reclamation of the 'Harambee Trophy' in a highly competitive team shoot against the Royal Air Force (RAF). In the individual events, NPS officers showcased their exceptional skills by securing two silver medals—achieved by IP W.A. Odhiambo (Busia) and IP C.K. Kiptarus (Vigilance)—along with two bronze medals awarded to CI L.S. Otundo (GSU Headquarters) in the Police Rifle Trophy. The team successfully achieved a total of 72 Bronze Bars across both individual and aggregated categories.

Kenya's influence was prominently showcased in the finals of prestigious global competitions. CI Sanford L.S. Otundo has successfully qualified for the King's Prize Finals, while CPL D.M. Mutunga from the Central Police Station in Nairobi has made history as the first Kenyan participant in the Imperial Meeting to advance to the finals of the esteemed St. George's Finals.

The performance in the Donaldson Memorial Shoot at 900 and 1000 yards (Long Range) was equally impressive, featuring four NPS officers—CI L.S. Otundo, IP W.A. Odhiambo, IP C.K. Kiptarus, and IP D.K. Kirui have successfully qualified for the finals, representing Kenya with notable strength. Furthermore, six NPS shooters achieved positions within the top 300 in preparation for the St. George's Stage II.

The NPS shooting team, through their discipline, skill, and patriotism, achieved global recognition and significantly enhanced Kenya's standing in the international shooting arena. The team arrived back from Bisley with a sense of pride and a focus on upcoming successes.

In the upcoming years, the NPS has scheduled a robust shooting calendar for 2025/2026, which includes both local competitions and international tournaments, as it aims to enhance its legacy in competitive shooting.

Seized culprits linked to illegal brew and drug abuse

NPS INCREASES EFFORTS TO COMBAT ILLEGAL BREWS AND DRUG ABUSE

The National Police Service (NPS) has intensified its nationwide efforts to combat illicit brews and substance abuse, reaffirming its dedication to safeguarding communities from the harmful impacts of illegal alcohol and narcotics. During August and September 2025, security agencies conducted extensive multi-agency operations resulting in significant seizures, arrests, and the dismantling of brewing dens in various counties.

In Nairobi County, law enforcement officials in Kayole executed a significant operation in the Soweto–Duka Moja area, resulting in the destruction of over 15,000 litres of illegal brew and the permanent closure of a major brewing facility. In Makadara Sub-County, law enforcement authorities confiscated more than 2,000 litres of muratina, with an extra 100 litres retained as evidence for ongoing investigations. The operations effectively dismantled illegal networks while also protecting numerous individuals from detrimental consumption.

In Uasin Gishu County, law enforcement officials in the Cheptiret Division of Kesses

Sub-County seized 600 litres of kangara and 40 litres of chang'aa, responding to public concerns regarding the rising distribution of illegal alcohol. In Nyatike Sub-County of Migori County, law enforcement officials from Karungu Police Station apprehended two individuals and seized a quantity of narcotics and illegal alcohol, which included cannabis. Meru County achieved a significant milestone when a coordinated multi-agency operation in Kang'ethia village resulted in the recovery of 260 litres of "Muna," a locally brewed beverage, as well as brewing equipment.

Following a review of operational progress, the Inspector General of Police, Mr. Douglas Kanja, reiterated the Service's dedication to ensuring the safety of Kenyans. "The sale and consumption of illicit brews poses a significant risk to the health and safety of our community." The Inspector General stated, "The National Police Service will maintain collaboration with all stakeholders to ensure that those responsible for this trade are apprehended and prosecuted."

The Ministry of Interior and National Administration has issued a warning to officers regarding potential collusion with unethical traders. Honourable Cabinet Secretary Kipchumba Murkomen highlighted the importance of accountability in the security sector, stating: "Any officer found aiding or shielding illicit brewers will face firm disciplinary action." This administration will not accept any actions that undermine public trust, particularly when they jeopardise the lives of innocent Kenyans.

The NPS consistently highlights the essential importance of public involvement in this endeavour. Individuals are encouraged to report any knowledge of unlawful activities via the designated hotlines. The NACADA Toll-Free Helpline (1192) is available around the clock to offer counselling and referrals for treatment and rehabilitation. Additionally, the Directorate of Criminal Investigations (DCI) manages the "Fichua kwa DCI" Toll-Free Hotline (0800 722 203) for anonymous crime reporting. In addition, individuals in Kenya can contact the police during emergencies by calling 999, 911, or 112.

The heightened enforcement measures reflect the government's commitment to ensuring public health, protecting families, and dismantling the networks that benefit from illegal alcohol and narcotics. Through collaboration among law enforcement, communities, and partner organisations, Kenya advances towards a drug-free and safer society.

Kerio Valley

ESTABLISHING SUSTAINABLE PEACE THROUGH THE SURRENDER OF FIREARMS

Some of the firearms surrendered during the disarmament exercise in the North Rift.

A Significant Advancement Towards Enduring
Security

The National Police Service (NPS) has achieved a significant milestone in combating illegal firearms in the Kerio Valley region, attributed to an exceptional number of voluntary surrenders documented during August and September. A total of over two hundred and forty (240) firearms, along with hundreds of rounds of ammunition and a rifle grenade, have been surrendered, indicating a significant move towards peace and stability in a region historically affected by banditry and inter-communal conflict.

Communities Leading the Way

The successful realisation of this achievement is attributed to the engaged involvement of local residents. In a remarkable operation, 57 rifles were surrendered in a single day, with an additional recovery of 10 firearms in Elgeyo Marakwet County shortly thereafter. In distinct occurrences, residents in Tot, Sagat, Kasemoi, and Marich willingly surrendered seven AK-47 rifles, several of which were fully loaded with ammunition. The operation progressed significantly, resulting in the recovery of 19 additional firearms, 109 rounds of ammunition, and a rifle grenade.

The actions of responsibility and courage exhibited by the public illustrate that the communities in Kerio Valley are fostering dialogue, cooperation, and peaceful coexistence. The NPS acknowledges and appreciates each individual who has responded to the call for disarmament, viewing their efforts as essential to fostering a safer future.

Personnel on the Frontline

The dedicated police officers assigned to the Kerio Valley are the driving force behind these successes. By implementing community policing, conducting intelligence-led operations, and adopting a patient, people-centered approach, officers have successfully built trust with local residents and fostered voluntary compliance. Their dedication and adherence to high standards have guaranteed that the surrender process is conducted in a safe, voluntary, and respectful manner.

The NPS leadership honours these individuals in uniform, whose dedication and strength embody the Service's commitment to policing through collaboration, integrity, and trust.

Collaboration for Harmony

The National Police Service highlights that surrendering a firearm is not indicative of weakness, but rather a significant demonstration of courage. Each rifle submitted signifies a life preserved, a conflict averted, and hope renewed. The Service urges all individuals currently in possession of illegal firearms to take this opportunity to collaborate with their community in fostering a future characterised by peace and security.

Reporting channels are still accessible.

To assist this important initiative, the NPS has established secure and confidential reporting avenues for individuals who wish to surrender firearms or provide information regarding illegal weapons:

- Contact DCI at 0800 722 203 or via WhatsApp at 0709 570 000.
- Emergency hotlines: 999, 911, 112
- Closest police station or post

The Service guarantees the public that any information shared will be handled with utmost confidentiality and care.

A Collaborative Achievement

The continuous advancements in Kerio Valley demonstrate that collaboration between communities and security agencies can lead to the attainment of peace. The NPS is dedicated to maintaining this momentum and ensuring that each surrendered firearm serves as a symbol of unity and hope for the future of Kenya.

NATIONAL POLICE SERVICE EXCELS AT 2025 MOMBASA INTERNATIONAL SHOW

The National Police Service (NPS) has demonstrated its commitment to excellence, creativity, and service following a remarkable achievement at the 2025 Mombasa International Show, securing four esteemed trophies and garnering the admiration of thousands of attendees.

Under the theme “Promoting Climate Smart Agriculture and Trade Initiatives for Sustainable Economic Growth,” the NPS stand distinguished itself as a centre of innovation, inclusivity, and exceptional service. The Service received awards:

- First Position – Outstanding Stand in Display and Presentation of Security Services (Government Organisation)
- Second Position – Outstanding Stand in ICT and Communication Systems
- Second Place – Outstanding Government Social Functions Stand
- Third Position – Outstanding Stand for Promoting National Cohesion and Integration Development

The accomplishments resulted from extensive planning and coordination, led by a committed committee in Nairobi and an advance team that worked diligently on-site to guarantee a seamless presentation. The technical teams from the Directorate of Administration, Planning and Finance, comprising designers, electricians, plumbers, logistics officers, and drivers, were instrumental in establishing an engaging and accessible pavilion.

Inclusivity Central to Policing

A notable aspect of the NPS pavilion was its dedication to diversity and inclusivity. Eight trained sign language interpreters from KPS, APS, and DCI facilitated full participation of individuals with hearing impairments in the exhibitions. Accessibility ramps were installed for visitors with mobility needs, enhancing the stand's welcoming nature at the showground.

The initiatives highlighted the Service's commitment to serving all Kenyans inclusively, with interpreters and accessibility measures garnering significant appreciation from visitors.

Highlighting the Contemporary Aspects of Law Enforcement

The pavilion showcased a diverse range of NPS directorates and specialised units, each highlighting their distinct role in enhancing national security and serving the community. Included in this group were:

NPS Headquarters includes the Corporate Communication, Reforms, Internal Affairs Unit, Integrated Command and Control Centre (IC3), and Police Air Wing.

- Medical Services: Providing both curative and preventive care, such as HIV testing, TB screening, and emergency medical response.
- Kenya Police Service: Directorate of Personnel, Counselling and Chaplaincy, GSU, K9 Unit, and the National Police College Main Campus Kiganjo.
- Administration Police Service (APS) includes the Border Police Unit, Rapid Deployment Unit, Anti-Stock Theft Unit, Critical Infrastructure Police Unit, Security of Government Buildings, and the APS Jazz Band.
- Directorate of Criminal Investigations (DCI): Forensic Fingerprint and Identification Bureau, recognised for issuing Police Clearance Certificates within 24 hours, Bomb Disposal Unit, Anti-Narcotics Unit, Fichua kwa DCI platform, and the DCI Corporate Affairs Unit.
- The APS Jazz Band provided an engaging atmosphere, captivating attendees—including the President—while the NPS Mass Band and committed Masters of Ceremony facilitated smooth performances in the Pavilion Arena.

A Destination for Guests

During the week, the NPS exhibition stand was consistently among the most frequented attractions. Students gathered at the pavilion, enthusiastic to engage with officers and gain insights into contemporary policing practices. Visitors utilised the on-site application for Police Clearance Certificates, which were processed within a 24-hour timeframe.

Senior leadership from the NPS, including the Director of Special Programmes KPS, Mr Mark Wanjala, CP; Deputy Director of NPS Corporate Communications, Ms Dorothy Migarusha, CP; and Director of Gender APS, Ms Tabitha Ndanu, CP, were present to provide guidance and engage with the public.

Recognition from the President

His Excellency Hon Dr. William Samoei Ruto, President of the Republic of Kenya, and Commander-in-Chief of the Defence Forces personally awarded the trophy for Best Stand in Display and Presentation of Security Services (Government Organisation) to the Inspector General of Police, Mr. Douglas Kanja. He praised the Service for its ongoing advancements in digitisation, modernisation, and community involvement.

Honouring Collaboration and Achievement

The achievements of the National Police Service at the Mombasa International Show demonstrate the dedication, expertise, and collaborative spirit of officers from various divisions. From logistical teams to specialised units, from performers to interpreters, each officer contributed to establishing the NPS stand as a symbol of service excellence.

The NPS leadership expresses sincere gratitude to all officers who played a vital role in achieving this remarkable success. Their combined efforts not only secured trophies but also reinforced the relationship between the police and the public—demonstrating the Service's steadfast dedication to "Service to All, With Dignity."

Paws Of Pride

NPS RECOGNISES THE KENYA POLICE K-9 UNIT

The National Police Service extends its commendation to the Kenya Police K-9 Unit, a cornerstone of commitment, discipline, and specialised service, whose contributions to national security consistently evoke a sense of pride throughout the nation.

The Unit has consistently played a vital role in contemporary policing in Kenya, showcasing its capabilities through engaging demonstrations at national events such as the Mombasa International Show, while also fulfilling essential frontline responsibilities at airports, border points, VIP security operations, and wildlife crime prevention efforts.

A Comprehensive Legacy of Service

The K-9 Unit originated in 1948 within the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) in Nanyuki, led by Mr. Bill Warner. In 1980, it was subsequently relocated to Lang'ata, Nairobi. In 1988, the Unit appointed its first Kenyan Commandant, Mr. Dominic Mugambi, marking a significant transition towards local leadership. The present Commandant is Mr. Kiptepis Chemworor, CP.

Significant milestones were achieved, including the official gazettment of the Dog Training School in 2005 and, in 2019, a rebranding that resulted in the Unit being renamed the Kenya Police K-9 Unit, with its training institution becoming the National Police Service K-9 Academy. These transformations solidified its position as a contemporary, highly specialised division of the Service.

Breeds with Intent

The core of the K-9 Unit's operations lies in the collaboration between adept handlers and expertly trained dogs, with each breed assigned a specific role:

- German Shepherds are utilised for patrols, protection, guard duties, and tracking.
- English Springer Spaniels are utilised in bomb detection.
- Belgian Malinois and Great Pyrenees for narcotics detection.

- Bloodhounds – expert tracking capabilities.
- Rottweilers are utilised for patrol, guarding, and protection services.

Primary Responsibilities and Specialised Functions

The Unit is responsible for the breeding, training, deployment, and care of police dogs and their handlers. These dogs are essential in:

- Monitoring individuals engaged in unlawful activities across landscapes where technological solutions frequently prove inadequate.
- Delivering patrol and security services in high-risk locations.
- Providing VIP protection services and executing security assessments in airports, ports, railway stations, and prestigious venues.

Enhancing National Security

The Kenya Police K-9 Unit is engaged in various areas of national significance. The Unit has demonstrated its essential role in safeguarding Kenya's people, wildlife, and natural resources through various initiatives, including the security of Jomo Kenyatta International Airport (JKIA) and Kilindini Port, as well as its collaboration with the Kenya Wildlife Service (KWS) and conservation partners like the African Wildlife Foundation (AWF) to combat poaching.

Their contribution to community relations is of significant importance. Public demonstrations of discipline and agility, frequently organised at agricultural shows and national events, serve to highlight the skills of the Unit while also reinforcing the relationship between citizens and the police.

Honouring Commitment and Excellence

The National Police Service expresses profound gratitude to the handlers and their canine partners for their steadfast commitment to the nation. Their quiet yet impactful contribution serves as a reminder that policing encompasses not just human efforts but also a commendable partnership between individuals and their devoted canine companions.

With each sweep, each patrol, and every detection, the Kenya Police K-9 Unit exemplifies dedication, bravery, and determination – truly living up to the name “Paws of Pride.”

EACC SUBMITS REVIEWS OF NATIONAL POLICE SERVICE SYSTEMS TO THE INSPECTOR GENERAL

The National Police Service (NPS) has achieved a significant milestone in its reform journey with the presentation of key findings from a systems review conducted by the Ethics and Anti-Corruption Commission (EACC). On 11th September 2025, the EACC delegation, headed by the Deputy Director of Corruption Prevention, Ms. Neema Mkorori, convened with Inspector General of Police, Mr. Douglas Kanja, at NPS Headquarters, Jogoo House, to discuss significant findings and recommendations from the ongoing review.

This event represented a notable milestone in an initiative that commenced on 10th February 2025 at the Administration Police Training College, Embakasi. The review was initiated at the request of the Inspector General, who sought an external assessment of the Service's systems and operations to enhance transparency, accountability, and public trust.

The systems review extends beyond a simple audit of accounts or procedures. This is a comprehensive assessment of the Service's frameworks, procedures, and methodologies, intended to uncover systemic vulnerabilities and gaps that have historically facilitated corruption within the NPS. The review aims to address these gaps by:

- Address corruption by removing pathways that allow unethical practices to flourish.
- Enhance service delivery by optimising processes for greater efficiency and responsiveness.
- Enhance transparency and accountability by integrating integrity into the everyday functions of the Service.

- Protect public confidence by showcasing a dedication to exemplary law enforcement practices.
- The review encompasses a wide range of areas, addressing both support and operational functions. The areas encompass administration, planning and finance, supply chain management, human capital development, legal services, corporate communications, and training institutions. The document also addresses the functions of the Kenya Police Service, the Administration Police Service, the Directorate of Criminal Investigations, and the Internal Affairs Unit. The review encompasses a broad spectrum of areas, establishing itself as one of the most thorough reform initiatives in the history of the NPS.

The Importance of This Matter

Corruption has long been recognised as a significant challenge confronting law enforcement in Kenya. Surveys conducted by oversight agencies, including the EACC, have consistently identified the police as one of the most impacted institutions. Reports of bribery at traffic checkpoints, along with concerns regarding recruitment, procurement, and internal accountability, have significantly diminished public trust and weakened the Service's capacity to fulfil its constitutional responsibilities.

The systems review signifies a significant shift from conventional business practices. Rather than addressing isolated instances of corruption, it aims to tackle the issue at its core — within the systems and procedures that govern the functioning of the Service. The review seeks to identify risks and propose preventive measures, thereby aiming to render the practice of corruption significantly more challenging, if not entirely unfeasible.

Commitment of the NPS by the Inspector General

Following the review highlights, Inspector General Douglas Kanja conveyed his sincere gratitude to the EACC team and all stakeholders who participated in the exercise. He assured the Commission and the citizens of Kenya that the Service is fully dedicated to executing the recommendations. This exercise reflects his commitment to establishing a legacy grounded in integrity, ethics, and exceptional service delivery.

His assurance indicates more than mere acceptance of the review; it represents a commitment to guide the Service into a new phase, where accountability is essential and inherent.

A Significant Milestone for the Service

The NPS has consistently been a pivotal component of Kenya's national security and justice framework. The officers are responsible for ensuring the safety of lives, protecting property, and maintaining the rights and freedoms of citizens. However, this essential mandate cannot be accomplished without the trust of the public.

The leadership of the NPS has made a significant and commendable decision by inviting the EACC to examine its systems. This demonstrates a commitment to accountability and a resolve to evolve the Service into an entity that inspires trust and pride among Kenyans.

The path forward will present challenges. Implementing reforms of this magnitude will necessitate steadfast dedication from officers at all levels, along with ongoing cooperation with oversight entities such as the EACC and IPOA. The groundwork is being established for a police service characterised by integrity, openness, and a commitment to serving the community, rather than by claims of corruption.

The review of the National Police Service systems transcends mere compliance; it presents a significant opportunity to reshape the future of policing in Kenya. It symbolises optimism for officers who aspire to serve with honour, for citizens who desire equity and expertise, and for a nation that regards integrity not merely as a goal, but as a benchmark.

The full implementation of the recommendations from this review has the potential to initiate a significant transformation in the history of the NPS: a transformation characterised by integrity as the foundation, accountability as the prevailing culture, and excellence as the enduring legacy.

NPS SUCCESSFULLY SECURE CHAN TOURNAMENT THROUGH EXPERTISE AND INNOVATION

The National Police Service (NPS) effectively ensured security throughout the 2025 African Nations Championship (CHAN), which was co-hosted by Kenya, Uganda, and Tanzania from 2nd to 30th August 2025. The matches took place in Kenya at Kasarani and Nyayo International Stadiums, with Ulinzi, Police Sacco, and Utalii Stadiums designated as official training venues.

Security Readiness and Management

The Inspector General of Police, Mr. Douglas Kanja, emphasised the National Police Service's dedication to ensuring the safety of the continental football showcase during a security assessment at Kasarani Stadium, alongside the Cabinet Secretary for Youth Affairs, Creative Economy, and Sports, Mr. Salim Mvurya, in preparation for the tournament. He assured stakeholders that the issues observed in previous matches would be resolved through improved coordination, enhanced ticketing verification, and effective fan management strategies.

The oversight of CHAN security was conducted under the leadership of the Deputy Inspector General – KPS, Mr. Eliud Lagat, with Mr. Tom Odero, Deputy Director of Operations, acting as the Focal Officer. Mr. Odero served as the representative for NPS at the Safety and Security Sub-Committee within the Local Organising Committee (LOC). He collaborated closely with CAF officials, private security, emergency services, and various stakeholders to develop and execute the security framework for the tournament.

Implementation and Collaboration

More than 3,400 officers from various units of the National Police Service, including GSU, RDU, K9, ATPU, ASTU, CIPU, NCTC, and General Duty police, were assigned to secure venues, hotels, training grounds, transport routes, and VIP movements. The management of venue and traffic operations was overseen by the Nairobi Regional Police Commander, Mr. George Seda, who acted as the central command point.

In accordance with CAF protocols, commanders were relieved of their routine responsibilities and fully committed to CHAN operations. CAF conducted a specialised sports security workshop in May, educating officers on international standards for crowd management and stadium security.

Traffic operations played a crucial role in the security plan. Informed by updates disseminated via official NPS social media channels, officers executed controlled roadblocks and diversions, especially on Thika Road during match days. Although these measures resulted in certain inconveniences, they effectively facilitated the safe and timely movement of teams, officials, and fans.

Achievements

The tournament concluded successfully, with no significant security incidents reported. Efficient escort operations, prompt bomb sweeps prior to matches, and robust hotel security for esteemed dignitaries created a secure atmosphere for players, officials, and fans. Close protection officers effectively ensured the safety of VIPs, including CAF President Dr. Patrice Motsepe.

CHAN has enhanced public trust in the Service. The presence and expertise of the officers, along with their cooperation with stewards and private security, created a favourable impression on fans and the wider community.

The CHAN tournament showcased the ability of the National Police Service to ensure the safety of international sporting events through expertise, creativity, and teamwork. As Kenya prepares for AFCON 2027, the insights gained from CHAN will provide a solid groundwork for achieving even greater success.

MENTAL HEALTH

IMPROVING MENTAL HEALTH IN THE NATIONAL POLICE SERVICE AND EMPHASISING SUPPORT AND RESILIENCE DURING SUICIDE PREVENTION MONTH

September is recognised worldwide as Suicide Prevention Awareness Month, a time to raise awareness, build understanding, and promote life-saving conversations about mental health. At the heart of the month is the global observation of World Suicide Prevention Day on September 10th, a reminder that every life is valuable and that stigma should never stand in the way of help.

Recognising the expanding mental health requirements of its officers, the National Police Service (NPS) has taken bold, deliberate efforts to improve its services. One of the most noteworthy changes this year was the directive from the Inspector General of Police, Mr.

Douglas Kanja, to restructure the Directorate of Chaplaincy, Counselling and Psychosocial Support into two distinct departments;

- The Department of Chaplaincy,
- Counselling and Psychosocial Support Department.

This bold step recognises officers' different needs. Some may find strength and guidance in spiritual nourishment, while others require psychological care through professional counselling. This division enables each Directorate to specialise, expand, and better adapt services to the officers' individual wellness and rehabilitation journeys.

Empowering the Frontline with Training and Awareness

In marking the Suicide Prevention Month, the Directorate of Counselling and Psychosocial Support held a three-day mental wellness lecture at the National Police College Main Campus in Kiganjo from September 16th to 18th, 2025. The workshop sought to prepare officers attending the HTC, Station Commanders, and 2025 Corporal Station Courses for future leadership responsibilities.

The goal of this lecture was to not only provide officers with managerial and supervisory abilities, but also to emphasise the importance of mental health in leadership. Through open conversations and training, the Directorate emphasised that caring for one's mental health is a necessity—and a strength—in police.

KPS/IJM Mental Health Retreat: A Space for Healing and Growth.

A highlight was the launch of the KPS/IJM Mental Health Retreat on September 2nd, 2025, at Abai Lodge in Kirinyaga County. The four-day clinical supervision and trauma-informed care workshop brought together 43 professional counsellors, psychologists, and chaplains from around the Service.

The retreat, which was opened by the Principal Deputy to the DIG-KPS, Mr. Patrick Tito, SAIG, on behalf of DIG-KPS Mr. Eliud Lagat, provided a space for meditation, refreshment, and skill-building for individuals responsible with helping others' mental health.

In his remarks, the DIG-KPS emphasised that mental resilience is just as important as physical strength for police personnel working in high-stress situations. He commended the International Justice Mission (IJM) for their ongoing collaboration and help in conducting such important activities. He also reaffirmed the Service's ongoing commitment to empowering both the Directorate of Counselling and Psychosocial Support and the Directorate of Chaplaincy, ensuring that officers and their families receive the care they require.

This effort is consistent with the 2023-2027 NPS Strategic Plan, which emphasises police officers' wellbeing and welfare as a foundation for good service delivery.

Moving Forward Together

The increasing recognition of mental health in the National Police Service is a step in the right direction. The NPS is taking real measures towards a more resilient, empowered, and mentally robust police force by implementing structural changes, capacity-building programs, and strategic partnerships.
